Club Anniversaries

No Anniversaries this week.

Meeting Notes - July 8th, 2020 by Randall Taylor, photos from Robb Mowbray.

This was the inaugural meeting for new president Anna Jones. It also was the club's first meeting at our new location, the scenic and welcoming Nanaimo Golf Club. 29 club members were in attendance with other members attending remotely through video conference. The meeting began with our traditional singing of O' Canada, followed by an invocation.

Guests this morning included: George Anderson, who would be the guest speaker and visiting Rotarian John Salem from the Downtown club.

Rotary Moment provided by Ev Boegh

Ev described the club members' participation in the Aboriginal Centre's Food Share program, which distributed 272 bags of fresh produce to families last week. More volunteers are required for this project. Contact Ev to volunteer. Ev also reminded us of the committee sign-up list for this new Rotary year committees. Contact Ev to get involved with our many committees.

Presentation of Paul Harris Fellowship: This was presented to Caitlin Mangiacasale-Ashford for her substantial contribution to the work of Rotary. This is Caitlin's first Paul Harris award.

Announcements:

Tyler Vaughan, as our new International Service Director, requested volunteers as chairpersons for Disaster Aid and Polio Plus committees. Please talk to Tyler or Ev for more information and to volunteer to lead these important committees.

Our "Shredding" event will be held on July 25th. Volunteers are needed for sign placement, estimators, cashiers and handling bins and boxes

Kris Rongve in leading our Book Box project and needs volunteers to place and empty the boxes. Call Kris to help with this on-going project.

San Mahara announced that the June 20th Walk For Nepal raised $4,069.00. Mid Island Group was a major donor to this cause. The club will apply for matching funds and a Global Grant for the Nepal projects.

Presentation: George Anderson, former City of Nanaimo Councilor (one of the youngest ever at 20 years of age, graduated Osgoode Hall Law School of York University and is now a practicing lawyer. George remains committed to the community through many charity organizations including the Nanaimo-Ladysmith Schools Foundation, Nanaimo Addiction Foundation, Big Brother and Big Sisters of Central Vancouver Island and others. George is a recent recipient of the B.C. Community Achievement Award.

George spoke about our communities at a time of Black Lives Matter. He asked the club members to consider their first involvement with police. This he contrasted with the involvement we see in our Canadian communities between police and the indigenous and non-white population. George asked us to look at our communities. We too often compare ourselves to other places in the world where racism is more visible, but racism is happening here. In the last federal election there was more concern about a new leader being American than about a leader who repeatedly appeared in black-face, brown-face.

We (Canadians) tend to look at the USA and elsewhere while we are practicing "polite racism" here at home. We wait until we are with like-minded people before we share our comments.

Our county's constitution is our "master story", but it includes and excludes specific peoples and it treats people differently. Black Lives Matter, Idle No More and Me Too are the outcome of people feeling that are not heard. But this discussion should not be put in motion only by marginalized people. All of us have to take time for this conversation. There are movements now which push us to be active and have the uncomfortable conversations. Say "this isn't Okay". Enough is enough.

The meeting then concluded with a few fines, some Happy Bucks and our goodbye's.
